

What is Introduction to Management?

This 1-day Introduction to Management course teaches candidates how to manage small-scale teams utilising motivational and cohesive team building strategies in collaboration with an established leadership style. Developing a candidate's management techniques and supervisory skills will boost team productivity, responsibility, and clarify a unified goal/intention, and is therefore demonstrative of continued personal development and beneficial for businesses looking to enhance management-influenced productivity. Different leadership styles are required in various situations, and when managing a myriad of individuals, hence this Introduction to Management course will help candidates discover how to impose their own preferred leadership style, in addition to discovering their business' optimal management style. Undertaking this training course will help candidates in their quest to become full-time managers, and is hence a positive step in enhancing personal development and career progression.

This training course is designed and available for everyone looking to enhance their knowledge of Management practices and principles, regardless of their industry - specifically learning about:

- The Responsibilities of a Manager
- How a Manager's Behaviour Influences a Team's Productivity
- Team Dynamics and Cohesion
- How to Enhance Motivation
- How to Create Effective Working Relationships and a Productive Working Environment
- Leadership strategies and styles - Democratic, Autocratic, Persuasive, Laissez-faire

---

Course Objectives

This Management Introduction training course intends to enhance knowledge of successful and evidence-based Management practices and principles - boosting productivity, motivation, and consequently financial rewards.

- What does Management Entail?
- Delegating Roles
- Management Roles
- Attributes of Successful Managers

- Overcoming Challenges
- Management Self-Assessment
- Importance of Self-Confidence
- Organisation of Oneself
- Organisation of the Team Processes
- Discovering the Difference between Preferred and Required Leadership Styles
- Effective Communication Strategies
- Team Development and Cohesion

This 1-day Introduction to Management training course educates aspiring Managers on how to manage small teams utilising motivational and cohesive team building strategies in collaboration with an established leadership style.